Professor Lande will give a presentation based on his study of "Cooperative" Lawyers in Wisconsin and describe why they offer this distinct form of practice in addition to traditional litigation and Collaborative Law representation. Although the Wisconsin lawyers use this process only in family cases, it can be readily applied in other cases. He will give practical suggestions about how lawyers can apply these principles in appropriate cases to reach results that are more satisfying for clients and lawyers. He will also describe how mediators are involved in Cooperative cases.

John Lande, Director of Master of Laws (LLM) in Dispute Resolution and Associate Professor of Law, University of Missouri-Columbia School of Law
