

How to Help New, Existing and Expanding Businesses Avoid Environmental Liability

May 5, 2010

Co-Sponsored by the Real Estate, Business and Environmental Law Committees

4.0 CLE Hours in Missouri and Kansas (pending)

Attorneys who represent companies in corporate and real estate transactions or advise them on how to grow and expand their businesses often encounter environmental issues that could affect their clients. This seminar is designed to help attorneys who represent new, existing or expanding businesses recognize and avoid potential environmental liabilities. Experienced environmental lawyers also will benefit from updates on recent developments in the law while those who are new to the practice of environmental law will receive a helpful introduction to key statutes and regulations.
